

English Homework: Interactive Journal

What is an interactive journal?

- This is a space for you to interact with the information I give you in class in a personal way.
- We will call the page where you wrote your answers the INPUT side. This is basically the information that I provide you with.
- We will call the opposite page, which is now blank, the OUTPUT side. This is where you will interact with the information from the input side.
- Your output can be colorful and creative. You can free write about an idea, develop questions, make connections and explore ideas from the INPUT side in a way that helps you understand. You can use text, graphics, symbols and colors.
- The only rule: It must show a connection to the input side and reflect your best work.